Everybody Ventures Launches Fund II with a Bold New Model to Democratize Venture Capital Investing

Los Angeles, CA — Everybody Ventures, the pop culture-first venture capital firm redefining early-stage investing, is proud to announce the launch of Fund II, a $3 million fund built around a groundbreaking, community-driven investment model.

Debuting ahead of the firm's participation at Web Summit Vancouver 2025, Fund II represents a bold shift in venture capital, giving Limited Partners (LPs) an active voice in every investment decision. By opening access and distributing decision-making power, Everybody Ventures is creating a fund that better reflects the future of business: more inclusive, more transparent, and deeply connected to culture.

Key features of Fund II:
• Democratized investing: Every LP has a vote. A majority vote decides whether an investment is made.

• Accessible entry: Individuals can join with a minimum commitment of just $3K, removing traditional barriers to entry.

• Consumer focused: The fund invests at the intersection of pop culture and technology, backing companies that are shaping how we live, connect, and create.

"Fund II is built on a simple belief: the future of venture capital should look a lot more like the future we want to live in: diverse, collaborative, and culture-led," said Bruce Hamilton, Founder and General Partner of Everybody Ventures. "As we head into Web Summit Vancouver 2025, we're excited to showcase a model that gives more people a real seat at the table."

Fund II will continue writing $50K–$100K checks into pre-seed and seed-stage consumer startups with a strong cultural pulse and breakout potential.

The fund is currently live in private beta and welcoming new Limited Partners, early-stage founders, and community collaborators.
