

For immediate release

Press Contact

Bry LeBlanc

media@eeva.ai

eeva Unveils Major App Upgrade Following $2.8M Pre-Seed Success

Vancouver, BC, May 2025 — Montreal-based startup eeva is stepping onto the Web Summit Vancouver (WSV) stage to unveil a faster, smarter, and more intuitive version of its all-in-one home life management app—fresh off raising over $2.8 million in independent pre-seed funding. In the tech world where early-stage capital is hard to come by (especially for women-led startups), eeva proves that when you're solving a real problem, people pay attention.

While technology has come so far, most of us still juggle calendars, group chats, scribbled notes, lost documents, and invisible to-do lists. eeva changes that. Designed to lighten the mental load of adulthood, eeva brings life's chaos into one beautifully simple, connected hub and makes getting organized feel surprisingly good.

"In today's world, the mental load isn't a buzzword—it's a reality," says Adrienne Jung, Co-Founder and CEO of eeva. "People are exhausted from having to remember, manage, and coordinate their busy lives. eeva is changing that, not by adding more noise, but by making life simpler, calmer, and better connected."

Backed by bold early support, eeva is now unveiling a sleek new version of the app—faster, smarter, and more helpful than ever. Jung, along with her Co-Founder, Jarrod Nichol, will be on-site exhibiting eeva at a booth during the conference.

What's new in eeva's latest release?

- Lightning-fast performance—because life moves fast, and so should your app.
- Cleaner, simpler design—so getting organized actually feels good
- Smarter interconnected features—link tasks, documents, and notes in one tap.
- Streamlined onboarding with tools like OCR scanning to digitize your life fast.
- AI chatbot (launching soon) to help automate the mental load of home life

About eeva

eeva is a home life management app that makes adulting easier. From to-do lists and reminders to calendars, documents, and home maintenance, eeva centralizes it all into one simple, collaborative platform that works across households and adapts to any lifestyle. Built by a women-led team based in Montreal and powered by smart, intuitive features (with powerful AI on the way), eeva helps people feel more in control and less overwhelmed, so they can actually enjoy the life they're leading. Learn more at eeva.ai

###